

World Summit on Media for Children and Youth KARLSTAD, SWEDEN 2010

Preparing with children and youth for a new media world in the 21st century

An ambitious and imaginative vision to put children's well being at the heart of the media agenda and media at the heart of the children's agenda.

A global Summit for educators, producers, policy makers and all professionals concerned with and by children, youth and media.

Young people will participate in planning, co-creating and contributing to the Summit, as well as attending in person and online.

A new format for a world conference with opportunities for networking, debate, challenge, interactivity and workshops to share perspective, experience and expertise.

Parallel virtual Summits held concurrently in major cities around the world, feeding into and interacting with the Karlstad Summit.

Presentation and debate of new research studies about children, the media and well being.
